THE internal revenue receipts will fall off fully one-half during the current fiscal year. The custom receipts since July 1 have averaged about $1,000,000 for each business day.

IT is regarded as a significant fact that two-thirds of the better class of saloon keepers in Ohio are heartily supporting the Scott law and express themselves willing to assist in enforcing it.

SECOND ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL ELMER is said to be as sensitive as a school girl to criticism on his official conduct. Rumor has it that he will resign on the first good chance he gets.

THE colored men of South Carolina will meet in State Convention on the 18th of this month, at Charleston, to elect twenty-five delegates to the National Colored Convention which meets at Louisville in September.

MASSACHUSETTS law allows an adjoining real estate owner to forbid the granting of a license to sell liquor. In Gloucester a saloon keeper tried to evade this provision by selling to a friendly third party a strip a foot wide from the side of his premises next to the objector, thus creating a new neighbor. But the courts have decided that the trick is of no avail.

CITIZENS of Bermuda have petitioned the Legislature to rid the Bermuda Islands of English sparrows. The sparrows have nearly destroyed the beautiful native red and blue birds. Twenty-five years ago crows were imported into the Bermudas as scavengers. They proved so destructive to the grain that twenty-five cents a head was paid by the Government for their extermination.

A LEXINGTON dispatch says: The Ashland Independent of to-day says: "We have it from a source that we regard as reliable that Wm. Neal sent word a few days ago to his mother, who lives near Catlettsburg, that he wanted her to come to the Lexington jail, as he believed he would not live till the time for his trial; that he wants to tell her the whole story of the murder; that George Ellis had told the truth as far as he went, but he did not tell all he knew, and that there was another man engaged in the affair besides those heretofore accused. The people in that neighborhood nearly all believe this, and we have considerable faith in it ourselves."

PRINCE OF MONTENEGRO.

Paris Receives a Visit From the Ruler of the Montenegrin Clansmen.

London, July 15.—The Paris correspondent of the London News sends the following: "I have met at the house of a common friend the Prince of Montenegro on his way back from Russia to his little mountain State, made a detour to visit Paris. He was educated at the Lycée Louis le Grand in the lifetime of his uncle Danilo, and, I believe, at the expense of the French Government, which founded a number of scholarships there for Balkan Slavs and Roumanians. Although Nicholas Petrovitch in that collegiate establishment suffered terribly from the confinement in which he was held, the playground being surrounded by high and gloomy looking walls, he was delighted to see once more his old scholastic jail.

"The Prince of Montenegro has been to the Elysee and Foreign Office. As he was when a lad often the guest of the late Emperor Napoleon and treated by him with much kindness he preserves a grateful remembrance of him and a pleasant recollection of the court of the Tuilleries. It is not, therefore, surprising that some of his best friends are Bonapartists, but he does not allow friendship to distort his judgment or to influence his politics. With the simple cordiality of M. Grevy's manner he expresses himself delighted. He talks fluently, freely and in excellent French. There is something in his bold, ready speech and apparent frankness that reminds one of M. de Lesseps. The latter quality is united with intense shrewdness. If I am not greatly mistaken the Prince is as keen a diplomatist as he is a brave soldier. He comes nearer to the beau ideal of a Highland chief than any one I have ever met before.

"The bearing and voice are those of a warrior and head of a little warlike people always ready to go forward, as he is himself. The late Czar impressed him as one so high up above other men that he was even in the midst of a crowd, condemned to solitude. He was a universal master. Nicholas Petrovitch's sympathies have been well developed by the companionship of men who look upon him more as the chief of a clan than a sovereign. If his personal qualities did not command respect he could not be respected. He looks his age—forty-two years—but not more. Although clearly a man of action there are deep lines of thought on his face, which is dark, perfectly modeled and handsome. Courteous habits are shown in his manners, and there is something very pleasant in the eye, notwithstanding the almost fiery energy of character that it often expresses. The complexion is bronzed. At the upper part of the forehead it is a few shades lighter."

How Was the Cash Balanced.

Washington Critic.
"Talking about making mistakes," said John Newhouse, of the West End Hotel in Georgetown, last evening, "the Farmers and Mechanics' Bank here made the worst mistake I ever heard of on last Saturday."

"What was it?"
"Why, I sent my barkeeper up to the bank to get $2 in nickels. The paying-teller handed him two packages, rolled up in paper, but they had no mark on them. He brought the packages down to me and I laid them on the shelf behind the bar. Having no occasion to use them until Monday, I opened one of them and found that instead of twenty nickels it contained twenty five-dollar gold pieces—$100. I opened the other package and it contained twenty five-dollar gold pieces. So, you see, instead of sending me forty nickels they had sent me forty five-dollar pieces—in all $200."

"Did you rectify the mistake?"
"I did. I took them back, called Mr. Berry, the paying-teller, to one side and gave him the gold. He thanked me and gave me $2 in nickels and I left, wondering how in the world the bank made its cash balance on Saturday night."

ALMOST every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. When this develops in scrofulous sores, ulcers, or eruptions, or takes the form of rheumatism, or organic diseases, the suffering that ensues is terrible beyond description. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla will thoroughly eradicate this evil from the system.
